

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of our loss of free press/media in the United States.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Large companies control the airwaves.

Instead of something produced by people with a narrow point of view, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.
